Call for Papers

Deadline: 5 February 2010

The European Transport Policy and Research committee seeks papers that are concerned with pan-European policy and its application at both European and national levels. We are interested in papers that address research and its application on issues that have a trans-national context.

Areas of special interest are: policy impacts of the EC Action Plan on Urban Mobility; transport policy which is being developed at supranational and national level to promote jobs; the effects of globalisation; and air transport related issues.

- Action Plan on Urban Mobility
- Supranational Policy
- Transport Policy developed at Supranational and National Level to promote jobs (car scrappage, electric vehicles) – the development of a new market
- Economic Benefits of Mobility Management in the reduction of CO<sub>2</sub>
- Research to effect policy changes to address climate change would be one area of interest
- Global issues and the impact upon transport (energy supply, climate change, scarce resources, global demographic changes)
- FP7 Framework
